Years of experience as a magician taught Tim David that real magic is all about words, and the way they influence the minds of the audience. What sets a professional magician apart from an amateur are people skills like communication, influence, and engagement—skills that are also effective in the workplace. Drawing on the largest survey of doctoral students ever conducted, Three Magic Letters provides a compelling portrait of the graduate school experience and identifies key issues affecting the success and failure of doctoral students. Michael T. Nettles and Catherine M. Millett surveyed more than nine thousand students from the top twenty-one doctorate-granting institutions in the United States. Their findings, based on rational analysis of a vast amount of descriptive data, shed light on multiple factors critical to the progression of the doctoral degree, particularly adequate institutional funding and engaged and accessible faculty mentors. This comprehensive volume will provide faculty chairs, administrators, and students with information and evidence for assessing their policies, practices, and programs to improve the graduate school experience and the future of the Ph.D.

Success Cybernetics: Practical applications of human cybernetics. Here's a wonderful new system of self-development based upon the most recent discoveries of the brain sciences and their close relationship to the computer sciences. In this book, U.S. Andersen shows you how your brain and nervous system are under the automatic control of your "Mental Computer" and gives you scores of "computer instruction" techniques for programming this mental computer to automatically to increase your skills and performance in any area you choose. Just as a computer can be programmed, you, too, can rapidly program a "guidance system" and a power mechanism into your brain and nervous system-and quickly combine the two into an automatic data processing unit that instantly emits spontaneous success responses to all outside problems. Cramming his book full of true case histories from his own experience in training people, U.S.Andersen gives you a unique approach to solving all your problems, handling people more easily and building automatic success habits into your life through mental programming.
