Human Rights Cases. TRIAL International brings justice to victims using two different fields of the law, either jointly or independently: Criminal law and human rights law. In both cases, individual victims have suffered serious abuse, and the crimes are of similar nature. But while criminal law deals with individual deeds, human rights law addresses State responsibility.

This book gives a good and detailed overview of international human rights law, focusing on sources, substantive obligation issues (such as progressive realisation) and methods of protection (regional, UN). Not much on individual substantive topics such as protection from torture, it is just lumped in with 'rights of an absolute character'.
