'Library' imposes upon itself a lot of definitions, meanings, connotations made by professionals, experts in library science, organizations and so on. There is a good scope of misinterpretation in determining the definition of a library, this is due to establishment of many so-called public libraries in India and abroad by voluntary organizations, philanthropists etc. during the eighteenth and nineteenth century which were open to public irrespective of class, creed, sex, educational attainment etc.Hence, for a library system, the elements are libraries at different levels with their branches and service units. But it is of two-fold: One is, to provide information, expressed or unexpressed to a person and another is to provide him with the informati
